

Dear Sirs:

I disagree with a bank exemption to the no-call list. As a consumer, I signed up for the no-call list because I do not want any kind of business bothering me about my consumer habits. If I change banks, I will do it for a reason and do not want to have to justify it or debate it with my old bank. I am not sure why banks should be immune to my wishes to not be called at any time. Please reconsider your petition.
